

Difference, (In)equality & Justice

2007 Annual Meeting

AMERICAN ANTHROPOLOGICAL ASSOCIATION

Preliminary PROGRAM

NOVEMBER 28-DECEMBER 2, 2007
WASHINGTON DC

Countdown to Washington DC!

FAYE HARRISON
2007 AAA EXECUTIVE PROGRAM CHAIR

Countdown! There are only two months before we come together in Washington DC. The enthusiastic response to this year's theme inspired the organization of many high quality sessions. As a result, the program will have more sessions than ever for an annual meeting.

In the context of this year's 534 sessions, the particularly robust AAA Presidential & Executive Platform will include 30 different sessions—high table discussions and conventional paper sessions among them—along with three poster sessions spotlighting the exemplary research of undergraduate and graduate students.

Five Days of Exciting Sessions

Of course, AAA Presidential & Executive segments of the program will in no way monopolize quality, excellence or significance. There will be an abundance of timely, topical sessions, beginning on Wednesday and ending on Sunday.

This will be a year that many of you should plan to take in and enjoy as much of the meeting's breadth and depth as possible. Although the most visible and highest priority activities tend to be scheduled from Thursday through Saturday, it is important to remember that interesting things will also happen on Wednesday and Sunday. So consider arriving on Wednesday and leaving Sunday.

On Wednesday afternoon, the meeting will start off with sessions such as one on the politics of knowledge production and decolonization among indigenous intellectuals, a topic that clearly resonates with the concerns raised in this year's theme: "Difference, (In)Equality and Justice." Later that day, in the evening, there will be provocative papers and lively discussions on such topics as the social life of video games, the use of slang in sociopolitical contexts, the state of post-Katrina New Orleans, the role of NGOs in participatory democracy and ethno-archaeological epistemologies.

After four days of exciting activities, the program for Sunday will sustain our commitment to engaging a wide range of compelling issues, including illicit spheres of the neoliberal economic order, the instabilities of the postcolonial state, the contemporary borders of Islam and even exploring "difference" in research on sleep.

Interesting Special Events

Beyond the complexity and richness of the scientific program, there will also be a number of interesting special events that will be worth attending. For instance, for those interested in European matters, the Society for the Anthropology of Europe is sponsoring a special luncheon that will feature seven moderator-facilitated roundtable discussions on interrelated topics such as the region's changing religious landscapes and the relationship that identity has to food and drink. This section is also hosting its annual William Douglass Distinguished Lecture, which will feature Unni Wikan's address on modern forms of honor-related violence.

The AAA Committee on Human Rights is sponsoring a panel discussion on intellectual property rights in an environment of digitalized communication and open access. It will also sponsor a workshop, led by Stephanie Kleine-Ahlbrandt, a senior officer with the UN Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights. The aim of the workshop is to build the capacity of anthropologists to work more effectively with the human rights mechanisms offered within the UN system. A similar workshop, co-organized by Pamela Puntenney and Eva Friendlander, will examine other UN arenas in which anthropologists can become engaged in the efforts undertaken to promote social justice and social change in various parts of the world.

International Collaboration

Another special event worthy of mention is the panel discussion that will focus on the significance of the congress that the International Union of Anthropological and Ethnological Sciences (IUAES) will convene in Kunming, China, next summer (July 15–23, 2008). In an event that will complement scientific sessions organized around the concerns of world anthropologies, scholars from China and other countries will address the international congress' theme ("Humanity, Development and Cultural Diversity"), the planning for the congress, and important trends in Chinese anthropology, particularly ethnology, which will become more visible through the congress.

In July I had the chance to travel to Kunming and Guiyang in the southwestern "frontier" provinces of Yunnan and Guizhou before going on to Beijing. I met anthropologists and other social scientists at several state universities, research institutes and government-run institutions dealing with ethnic and women's affairs. Our Chinese colleagues recognize that annual meetings of the AAA occupy an important place in the production and reproduction of US as well as world anthropologies. Consequently, they are eager to be exposed to current trends here.

The potential overlap in the concerns of this year's AAA meeting and the thematic focus of the IUAES congress should give us a productive basis for exchanging ideas and defining the terms for continuing the dialogue in the future. Consistent with the AAA's Long Range Plan, the annual meeting seeks to promote the participation of anthropologists from all constituencies, both here and abroad. If all goes according to expectations for this year, that objective will be met.

Bringing Back Biology (Into Anthropology)

ALAN GOODMAN
AAA PRESIDENT

Biology has been everywhere. It is in laboratories, clinics and hospitals, in the popular press and corporate boardrooms, and always in motion in our everyday lives. As persons, we live in our bodies. As social beings, we communicate with and through our bodies.

Alan Goodman

Biology has also been on the fringes of anthropology. Should we bring it back onto the center stage of anthropology? I argue that we should. In my presidential talk I plan to map out the separation and reconnections of cultural and biological anthropologies, ways that they have begun to reconnect recently, and ways that they may connect further. Attention to biology from a wider spectrum of anthropologists could improve how we think about and theorize biology, and that

However, biology is coming back into anthropology. In the last 15 years, Boasian influenced political-economic and critical biocultural anthropologies are re-emerging. In what Brooke Thomas calls the biologies of inequality and poverty, biological anthropologists are joining medical anthropologists and social epidemiologists in the search for the political-economic and social origins of biological distress and disease. Meanwhile, cultural anthropologists are studying the biosciences and exploring the webs of practice, politics and diverse meanings of biologicals: ecological systems, foods, blood, immune systems, sex chromosomes, genes, race/racism and more. All the while, bioarchaeology is a thriving cross-subfield specialty. In the last few years, departments of anthropology have been searching in AN for new faculty with expertise in the field of "biocultural anthropology."

Yet, the re-emergence is limited. Decades of separation have left deep ideological and institutional divides. Is bringing biology back doable and worthwhile? What are the stakes? What are these departments of anthropology looking for when they seek a biocultural specialty?

could improve how we see each other and care for human bodies.

In one episode of the standard history of North American anthropology, biological anthropology began to drift apart from sociocultural anthropology due to the Boasian separation of biology from culture. Paradoxically, Boas' own anthropometric research is an early example of non-reductionist "biocultural" anthropology. However, he and his students were not equipped with the theoretical or political tools to counter the hegemonic reductions of culture and behavior to biology and biological variation to "race." In much the same ways that feminists took on gender and ceded sex to the natural scientists, sociocultural anthropology and the rest of the social sciences ceded all of biology to the natural sciences. By the end of the 20th century, the subfields of biological and cultural anthropology were nearly completely separate, incipient fields. Separate associations, funding sources, meetings and journals have led to greater divisions in theory, practice and politics.

In this talk, I argue that human biology is not separate from or oppositional to culture. Rather, human biology is cultural. Biologicals are culturally born, developed and taken apart. Culture is everywhere and always in biology. The body and biologicals are actually biocultural. There are huge potential benefits to real people living real lives in a non-reductionist, dialectical intertwining of biology and culture. The study of the human body ought to be as much a social science and humanity as a natural science.

A New History of Anthropology

Edited by HENRIKA KUKLICK
University of Pennsylvania

"This is a wonderfully engaging brave collection of essays that interrogates much of the received wisdom about the history of anthropology. It moves the history of anthropology away from a narrowly British-American focus and engages with the breadth of the discipline in exciting and challenging ways."

—Howard Murphy, Australian National University

September 2007
978 0 581 77600 0 -- Paperback
978 0 581 22589 7 -- Hardcover

Linguistics in a Colonial World

A Story of Language, Meaning, and Power

JOSEPH ERRINGTON
Yale University

"This is stimulating scholarship and a valuable teaching resource..."

—Kathryn Woolard, University of California, San Diego

As knowledge of exotic languages became important for colonial power, linguistic scholarship became a crucial contributing element to colonial regimes. Linguistics in a Colonial World draws on both original texts and critical literature to survey the methods, meanings, and uses of linguistics in and for colonial projects over three centuries. ## The Anthropology of Globalization

A Reader

Second Edition

Edited by JONATHAN XAVIER INDA and RENATO ROSALDO
University of California, Santa Barbara; New York University

"This volume brings together some of the most insightful anthropological writing on globalization, and so achieves the miracle of making sense of the innovations, countervailing tendencies and dilemmas that are now part of the study of culture in a changing world."

—Ronald Nighu, McGill University

An Introduction to the Archaeology of Ancient Egypt

KATHRYN A. BARD
Boston University

"There has never been a scholarly introduction to the archaeology of ancient Egypt that also works as a course text. Kathryn Bard's new book fills that gap. I am particularly impressed by its even coverage of all historical periods and types of evidence."

ANTHROPOLOGICAL QUARTERLY

A publication of the George Washington University
Institute for Ethnographic Research
2110 G Street, NW, Washington, DC 20052

A new school year has begun—and that means new students, new professors, new classes—and a new AAA Guide. The 2007–08 AAA Guide, now in its 42nd edition, provides detailed information on:

- » Over 9,000 anthropologists
- » Over 400 academic programs
- » Over 90 Museums, Government Agencies, and Research Firms

The AAA Guide also includes:

- » a AAA membership directory
- » statistical data
- » a listing of PhD dissertations in anthropology.

a source of information that anthropologists can consult with confidence—with the knowledge that if you need to know, “it’s in the AAA Guide.”

To order, see www.aaanet.org/pubs/order.htm, or call 703/528-1902 ext 3023

The 2007-2008 AAA Guide

It's in There . . .

For the past 39 years, the AAA Guide has been the premiere information source for the academic study of anthropology in the United States and Canada. The editor appreciates the support and many excellent suggestions made by members over the years. The Association will continue to improve the AAA Guide, with the hope that it will continue to be a

AAA E-Guide

Looking for a University offering a PhD program in Medical Anthropology?

Or for an Anthropologist who studies Mayan Culture?

With the AAA E-Guide, your search is over or better yet, it has just begun!

As a benefit of membership, AAA Members can:
Search over 9,000 anthropologists
Search over 400 academic programs
Search over 90 Museums, Government Agencies, and Research Firms

This online service is available to members only as a benefit of AAA membership!

AAA Department Services Program . . . .

Benefits

Through enrollment in the Department Services Program, your department or office will receive the following benefits:

- ☞ A complimentary copy of the AAA Guide*—a $85 value
- ☞ Complimentary subscription to Anthropology News*—a $111 value
- ☞ Complimentary copy of our new DVD Anthropology: Real People, Real Careers. This DVD tackles the question “what exactly does an applied anthropologist do?” It is approximately 42 minutes long and designed to be played either in its entirety or by chapter, making it an ideal classroom instrument. (Available to new members only)
- ☞ Special discounted rate for job listings in Anthropology News and on AAA’s searchable career website. DSP members receive a 44% discount for placement ads and for access to our resume database that features CVs and other information about AAA members who are seeking positions—a $200+ value

- ☞ Free access to the DSP-only listserv for departmental leadership. This listserv, open only to DSP members, offers participation in discussion groups around topics of critical interest to anthropology departments as well as other special announcements regarding grants, funding and employment opportunities (via the listserv-only newsletter The Department Round-Up)
- ☞ A complimentary set of mailing labels (upon request) of all institutions listed in the AAA Guide—a $150 value
- ☞ A booth at no cost at the AAA Annual Meeting Placement Service for interviewing job candidates—a $110 value
- ☞ Discounted member rates for AAA publications
- ☞ Invitation to the Department Chairs Breakfast and topic session at the AAA Annual meeting

**Instead of a copy of the AAA Guide and Anthropology News subscription, community colleges receive five copies of SACC Notes, the biannual publication of the AAA Section Society for Anthropology in Community Colleges—a $75 value.*

Provides information resources and job placement services for departments of anthropology (in both academic and non-academic environments), including joint departments. DSP enrollment is effective for one year with an annual renewal schedule.

To Join: Please fill out the appropriate application online (www.aaanet.org/pubs/ar/dsp.htm), then print out the form and fax or mail it to the AAA with payment information. If you department recently renewed your listing in the 2007–08 edition of the Guide, you will receive a $25 discount on your DSP membership. Please make sure to use the second invoice.

DSP enrollment is effective for one academic year (August 1 to November 31 of the following year) with an annual renewal schedule. Cost of renewal is $275. If you have any questions or require further information, please contact the Department of Academic Relations, at 703/528-1902 ext. 3028.

Benefits of Membership in AAA

AAA offers its members a wealth of important benefits:

AnthroSource

The premier online resource serving the research, teaching, and professional needs of anthropologists. Developed by the American Anthropological Association, AnthroSource brings 100 years of anthropological material online to scholars and the public. AnthroSource offers AAA members access to more than 40,000 articles in AAA journals, newsletters, bulletins, and monographs; a linked, searchable database containing past, present, and future AAA periodicals; it will also offer centralized access to a wealth of other key anthropological resources, including text, sound, and video; and interactive services to foster communities of interest and practice throughout the discipline.

AnthroSource is a fully integrated information resource. Its powerful search engine makes precision research quick and easy. Citations in article PDF files are dynamically linked through CrossRef to other publications, both within and beyond AnthroSource.

But AnthroSource is more than a content collection. It is an evolving, interactive repository of research and communications tools designed to bring the most credible and relevant of anthropological scholarship together in one place and to support a strong community of scholars, teachers, and students in the field.

Registered AAA members can take advantage of personalization options, such as saved searches and email alerts, to make AnthroSource a truly interactive research tool.

Anthropology News

Anthropology News is published nine times a year, with news and commentaries on trends, issues and activities across the discipline.

- The most comprehensive listings of anthropological job opportunities available.
- Information on conferences and academic meetings.

Annual Meeting Opportunities

Participate in the AAA Annual Meeting, the world's largest, most prestigious meeting of anthropologists.

Annual Meeting Member Publications

Free Subscriptions to AAA and AAA Constituent Section sponsored journal and newsletters based on your membership selections and reduced prices for the Association's many publications.

AAA Guide

Your name will be included in the Membership Section of the AAA GUIDE, a widely consulted anthropological publication, which includes a comprehensive directory of AAA members, academic programs, museums and government, agencies and research firms, as well as statistical data and a listing of PhD dissertations in anthropology.

- Provides information on academic departments of anthropology, museum and research institutions, and government organizations.
- Lists all AAA members and their Section affiliations, and features indexes and statistical information on the field.

Online Membership Directory

You will be listed in AAA's computerized database of anthropologists. This is an on-line data base which affords multiple opportunities for our members. You can develop a wide-ranging network of colleagues, make yourself available as an expert, or find others who are working in similar fields. You control any information about yourself that is made public (within the realm of the AAA membership.) This is a chance to promote your work and yourself!

Career Center

Receive access to AAA's on-line Career Center, where you can use our interactive job-search, post your resume, and manage your career strategy.

Networking Opportunities

Access to over 36 Constituent Sections representing the broad field of anthropology (archaeology, biology, linguistics, ethnology, medical, visual and practice). Extensive networking opportunities among researchers, teachers and practitioners.

AAA Member Insurance

Help secure your family's financial future . . . at premiums you can afford today. With the AAA Group Insurance Program, you can count on competitively priced, high-quality insurance designed to protect you and your family. And because coverage is not tied to your job, this insurance can follow you throughout your career. It all adds up to a valuable benefit of AAA Membership.

For more information, or to join AAA, contact Member Services at 703/528.1902, or go online to www.aaanet.org/memsrv.htm.

► Members

Members now receive access to AnthroSource as a benefit of belonging to the AAA—a complete anthropology library at your fingertips. Begin using AnthroSource today by logging on to the AAA website at www.aaanet.org, and use the latest benefit of your AAA membership.
