

Teaching Anthropology: SACC Notes

In this Issue

Papers

Kathryn Borman, Cassandra Workman, Jason Miller and Ted Micceri, The Community College in Contemporary Society: Contextualizing Race and Gender in Florida..... 9

Merle Wallace, the Power of a Team Ethnography-Focused course for Learning Culture..... 16

Patricia Hamlen, Dreams of Trespass Continue for a Young Moroccan Woman..... 22

Jason Wenzel, Exploring Orlando’s Diversity in Time & Space through a Hybrid Anthropology Course..... 26

William Guinee, a Strategy for Teaching Horace Miner’s “Nacirema”..... 28

Book Reviews

Archaeology to Delight and Instruct: Active Learning in the University Classroom* (Bob Muckle)..... 30

RACE Are We So Different?* (museum exhibit) and How Real is Race? A Sourcebook on Race, Culture, and Biology (Lloyd Miller)..... 32

Plus

Archaeology Matters*, a recurring column by Bob Muckle ..... 6

Laura’s Top 4 Reasons to join SACC* by Laura Gonzalez..... 3

The SACC 2008 Conference* by Ann Kaupp..... 4

Officers—1; SACC’s website and listserv—21